Lineage.

All our antiquaries coincide in attaching a long and distinguished line of ancestors to this family, and in giving it an Anglo-Saxon origin; but they differ as to the identity of its founder, some alleging him to have been Sir Alan Gower, Lord of Stittenham, in Yorkshire, said to have been sheriff of the county temp. WILLIAM I.; whilst others name William Fitz-Guyer, of Stittenham, who was charged with a mark for his lands in the Sheriff's accounts, anno 1167. Brydges's Collins, vol. II., p. 441). In more than a hundred years afterwards (towards the close of the 13th century), we find

SIR JOHN GOWER, one of the persons of note summoned to be at Carlisle, with horse and arms, on the Feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist to march against the Scots; and again, in the following year, the same personage is summoned for a like purpose, to proceed to Berwick. After Sir John comes

LAWRENCE GOWER, who obtained the king's pardon in the 7th EDWARD II. for having been concerned with the Earl of Lancaster in the murder of Piers Gaveston at Blacklow Hill, 19 June, 1312. This Lawrence was s. by

SIR NICHOLAS GOWER, who was returned one of the knights of the shire, co. York, in the 12th EDWARD III. to a great council summoned by Edward the Black Prince, then guardian of the realm, and held at Northampton, for which service, being in attendance fourteen days, he received the sum of £5 12*s.* In the 24th of the same monarch we find Sir Nicholas obtaining the king's permission to go to Rome, with six valets and seven horses in his retinue; and in 1351, he was commissioned to investigate some outrage committed upon Hugh, Archbishop of Damascus, at Newstead, near Boland. His son,

SIR THOMAS GOWER, Knt. of Stittenham, m. Agnes, dau. of Thomas Thwaites, Esq. of Lovetofts, co. York, and had issue,

JOHN (Sir), his successor.

Lineage.

This very ancient family derives its surname from Swinburne Castle, in Northumberland, which it possessed from so remote a period, that (although Sir William Dugdale notes them not as such) the Swinburnes of Swinburne Castle have been esteemed feudal lords.

Sir Adam de Swinburne, representative of the family temp. Edward II., left a son, Adam de Swinborne, Swinborne, who d. s. p., and three daus., viz.,

Christian, m. to John de Widdrington, and thus Swinburne Castle, the old seat of the Swinburnes, passed to the Widdringtons, from whom it was purchased in 1699 by T. Riddell, Esq. of Fenham, and is now the property of that gentleman's descendant, the present Thomas Riddell, Esq. of Felton Park and Swinburne Castle.

Barbara, m. to John de Strivelyn, of Built Castle, Cumberland. Elizabeth, m. to Walter Heron, of Haddiston.

The family immediately before us, which springs from a common progenitor with the Swinburnes of Swinburne Castle and has preserved a male succession, derives directly from

Mr. Swinburne was sent to Paris, in 1797, as commissioner for exchange of prisoners. He, in 1801, was sent out to deliver up the Danish West Indian Islands to the Danish Commissioner, Count Waltersdorf, and so entirely to the satisfaction of all parties did he perform his duty, that the British merchants made him a handsome present, and the King of Denmark presented his widow with £2,000 after Mr. Swinburne's sudden death, which occurred, in 1803, at Trinidad, while he was holding there the lucrative office of Vendre Master. SYKES.

Sykes, Sir Frederic-Henry, of Basildon, co. Berks; late capt. 11th hussars, and Royal Horse-Guards Blue; b. 12 Feb. 1826; s. his brother as 5th baronet, 1866; m. 5 Jan. 1867, Miss Caroline Bettesworth, of Hayling, Hants, and has had,

Caroline-Eva-Henrietta, b. 30 April, 1872.
Violet-Anne-May, b. 5 Aug. 1880.

Lineage.

The name of Sykes, is derived from the Anglo-Saxon sich, interpreted by Somner as sulcus aquarius, a water-course, or water-furrow. Northern topography abounds with the word syke, which is usually applied to a small running stream, or rivulet. The arms in use from a remote period, are derived from the same source, being:—"Argent, a chev. sa., between three heraldic fountains, or sykes."

Thoresby says, the Sykeses of Leeds "sprung from these of the name at Sykes' Dyke, near Carlisle (whose servants wore the Branded Bull* as their badge)."

Extant documents, in Latin and in English, prove that some of them were located at Flockton, in the parish of Thornhill, near Leeds, about the year 1200, when Agnes del Sicke acquired lands at "Floketon," adjoining those previously held by William del Sicke: that in 1845 (18 Edw. III., John del Syk, of "Fflokton," conveyed ancestral lands, there, to his son, Michael; that in 1550, (4 Edw. VI.) John Sykys conveyed tenements and land in Flockton; with remainder to his eldest son, Charles, and second son, William; that in 1577, (19 Eliz.) Charles Sykys, whose wife's name was Christian, sold certain pastures in Nether Flockton: and that some of the descendants of William Sykys, who settled at Leeds as a clothier, held for a considerable period, lands at Flockton.

In 1576 (18 Eliz.), the wills of Richard and William Sykes, of the Kirkgate in Leeds, clothiers, name William, their father, as surviving: they also mention their brothers, James and Edmund, as living at Leeds. Richard, who was the third son, left (with other issue) a son, Richard, who was among the earlier Mayors of Leeds, and founded the great mercantile family of his name. In 1581 (23 Eliz.), George Sykes, of Vicar Lane and the Kirkgate (born before the commencement of the parish registers), married Elizabeth Hodgson; and their youngest son, George, baptized in 1588, became ancestor of the family of Sykes of Dryglington, near Leeds.

William Sykes, Esq. of Kirkheaton, co. York, said to have descended from the Sykes, of Sykes Dyke and of Leeds, was father of Francis Sykes, Esq. of Thornhill, co. York, who m. 25 Sept. 1707, Martha Fearnley, and had, with other issue, an eldest son, William, of Ackworth Park, co. York, who d. s. p. in 1777; and a third son,

I. Francis Sykes, Esq. of Ackworth Park, b. 1732, who amassed a considerable fortune in India, where he was chief governor of Cossimbrizar, in Bengal, and purchased, upon his return to England, the manor of Basildon, in Berkshire from the Countess of Sandwich and the Countess de Salis. It was then that the arms and crest used by this branch of the family were granted; for it appears in a record at the College of Arms, dated the 1st March, 1763, after reciting the descent of this gentleman from his ancestors at Kirkheaton, Spoforth, and Leeds, in Yorkshire, whose original family was of the co. of Cumberland, and who bore for their armorial ensigns—Arg. a chevron, sable, between three fountains, or SYKES, ppr.—that he was desirous to bear the said arms, and a crest with some variation or addition, so as to distinguish his branch from all others of the name, and accordingly the present arms and crest of this branch of the family were then granted. He was created a Bart. 8 June, 1781. Sir Francis m. 1st, 7 Feb. 1766, Catherine, dau. of John Ridley, Esq., and by her (who d. 30 Dec. 1768) had two sons,

Sir Nicholas Taaffe, who d. in 1288, leaving two sons, John Taaffe, archbishop of Armagh, who d. in 1306; and

Richard-Fitz-Nicholas Taaffe, whose eldest son,

Richard Taaffe, Esq., seated at Ballybraggan and Castlelumpnagh, served the office of sheriff of the co. Louth in 1315, and to his custody was committed Hugh de Lacie, the younger, Earl of Ulster, after his condemnation for high treason, From this Richard descended

Sir William Taaffe, Knt. of Harleston, who distinguished himself by his services to the crown during Tyrone's rebellion in 1597; and subsequently maintained his reputation against the Spanish force which landed at Kinsale in 1601. TALBOT, EARL AND BARON, see SHREWSBURY, EARL OF.

TALBOT DE MALAHIDE.

TALBOT OF MALAHIDE, BARON (Richard-Wogan Talbot), and Lord Malahide, of Malahide, co. Dublin, Ireland; Baron Talbot de Malahide, United Kingdom, hereditary lord-admiral of Malahide and the seas adjoining; late lieut. 9th lancers; b. 28 Feb. 1846; s. his father as 5th baron, 1883; m. 26 June, 1873, Emily-Harriet, youngest dau. of Sir James Boswell, 2nd bart. of Auchinleck, and has a son, JAMES-BOSWELL, b. 18 May, 1874.

Lineage.

The castle and lordship of Malahide, on the sea-coast, near Dublin, have been possessed by the family of Talbot from a period contemporary with the first introduction of English government into Ireland, and at this moment they furnish an instance unusually rare, of a baronial estate having continued for upwards of 650 years in the male heirs and name of him on whom it had been originally conferred by HENRY II. It is remarkable, too, that of the ancient seigniorial estates in Ireland, whose lords were vested with the dignity of parliamentary barons, not one can be traced to have been held directly and immediately under the crown but the Lordship of MALAHIDE. In this respect Malahide seems to have been unique in Ireland, and its lords, pursuant to the nature of their original tenure and the terms of their royal charters, never rendered homage, suit, or service, to any but the crown, nor acknowledged any superior but the King of England alone. Richard de Talbott, who is mentioned in Domesday-Book, was the common ancestor of the Lords of Malahide and of the Earls of Shrewsbury; and in consequence of the well-known affinity of those two branches, the family in Ireland, by ancient entails and settlements, made the members of the house of Shrewsbury next heirs in remainder to their Irish estates.

RICHARD TALBOT, "Chevalier," was Lord of Malahide in the reign of HENRY II. and after that monarch conferred the dominion of Ireland on his son, Prince (subsequently King) JOHN, Sir Richard obtained a confirmatory grant of his lordship, with Sac and Soc, Tol and Them, infangthef, and the judgement of Water, and of Iron, the Duel, the Pit, the Gallows, and all other the appendages of civil and criminal jurisdictions as possessed by the baronage of that day, to hold to him and his heirs by rendering to the king the service of one archer with a horse and coat-of-mail for ever. Sir Richard had also confirmed to him the advowson of the church of Malahide, and having, about the year 1193, presented his brother, Walter Talbot, to that benefice, he died, leaving two sons, Reginald and Adam. The elder,

REGINALD TALBOT, being a minor at his father's decease, the wardship of the estates devolved to the crown; and during his nonage, Walter his uncle, having died, the church became vacant, whereupon Henry de Londres, Archbishop of Dublin, then acting as justiciary, or chief governor of Ireland, appointed a clerk to the benefice in right of the king, as is set forth in an ancient inquisition. Reginald soon after died without issue, and was succeeded by his brother and heir,

ADAM TALBOT, Lord of Malahide, whose descent is specifically set forth in some proceedings taken by the crown to protect the estates of the family against certain encroachments of the Archbishop of Dublin. His son and heir was

RICHARD TALBOT, who is entered on the Exchequer roll of 1278, as "Dominus Richardus Talbot," and who by the name of Richard-Fitz-Adam Talbot, Knt. granted to King EDWARD I., in the year 1286, all wardships, reliefs, marriages, escheats, &c., happening within his Lordship of Malahide; and it further appeared by the same deed, which is enrolled on the Antiquissimæ rolls of Ireland, that he settled Malahide on his son,

SIR MILO TALBOT, whose wife was Alianore, and who was succeeded by his son,

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, was the associate in arms of Sir John Bermingham. By his wife, Margaret (de Ashebourne), he had a son and heir,

SIR THOMAS TALBOT. On 15 Feb. in the 46th year of EDWARD III., a parliament, or great council, was convoked in Ireland, and the writs of summons to the prelates, peers, &c., are still remaining on the close-roll of that year; amongst the peers is "Thomas Talbot, miles." By his wife, Agnes, he had issue two sons, Richard and Thomas.

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, the elder son, was sheriff of the co. Dublin; and by his wife, Cecilia (who afterward married Robert Gallane, and had dower in Clonaghless), left issue a son,

THOMAS TALBOT, a minor at his father's death, who died, leaving a son and heir,

CHRISTOPHER TALBOT, whose guardianship and estates in the cos. of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, were granted to Sir Thomas Fleming, Baron of Slane, by patent, dated at Westminster, March 1, in the first year of King HENRY IV. Christopher died a minor and without issue, whereupon the lordship devolved on

THOMAS TALBOT, son of Sir Thomas, (who was summoned to the great councils and parliament in the reign of EDWARD III., as above mentioned.) For him, as "Thomas filius Thomæ Talbot militis," homage of two-thirds of Malahide was respited, 12 Nov. 1430; but he died soon after, as it appears that on the 8 Nov. 1432, the king granted to Thomas Cusacke and others the custody of all estates in the several counties of Dublin, Meath, and Kildare, of which he had lately died seised, and which were now vested in the crown by the minority of his son and heir,

RICHARD TALBOT, Lord of Malahide who m. Matilda, dau. of Christopher, Baron of Killeen. Her ladyship, on the death of Sir Richard, married John Cornewalsh, who was chief-baron in the reign of HENRY VI., and enjoyed with her husband, dower out of the lordships of Galtrim and of Malahide, in right of her two former lords. Sir Richard Talbot, by the said Maud, his wife, left a son and heir,

THOMAS TALBOT, who, on the 15 Nov. in the year 1469, had a patent of privileges conferred on him by the crown, as "Thomas Talbot, Armiger, Dominus de Malahide." On the 15 Nov. 1469, the king granted him a patent as "Thomas Talbot, Armiger, Dominus de Malahide." He was twice married; by his first wife, whose name was Sommerton, he had a son,

I. PETER, who s. him.

By his second wife, Elizabeth Buckley, he had,

II. John, ancestor of Talbot, of Dardistown, co. Meath.
III. Richard.
IV. Thomas, m. Alson Warde, and had five sons, Gilbert; Peter; Nicholas; Robert; and Simon.

SIR THOMAS TALBOT, who, on the 18 Dec. in the year 1529, had a grant of livery of all his father's estates in several counties in Ireland, being then aged 28 years. He m. Katherine Betagh, of Moynalty, co. Meath, and had three sons,

The family of Sandilands take their name from their earliest possession of the lands of Sandilands in Douglasdale. James, of Sandilands, in the 14th century, obtained in marriage Alionora, sister of William, 1st Earl of Douglas, and widow of Alexander Bruce, Earl of Carrick (afterwards wife successively to Sir Duncan Wallace of Sundrum, and Sir Patrick Hepburn, of Hailes), and got from his brother-in-law the lands of Calder, to be held from him. He had, with a dau., Marion, m. to Sir Gilbert Kennedy, of Dunure, a son,

James Sandilands, who m. 1384, Princess Joan, dau. of Robert II., and widow of Sir John Lyon, of Glamis. He was induced by the influence of Margaret, Countess of Angus and Mar, to renounce his prospect of succession to the unentailed Douglas estates in favour of George, Earl Angus, natural son of that lady by William, 2nd Earl of Douglas, a transaction confirmed by Robert III., in 1397. His son,

James Sandilands, of Calder, a hostage for James I. in 1421, became, by the death of James, 2nd Earl of Douglas, at Otterburn, and of Isabel, Countess of Mar, in 1407, heir of line of the Douglas family; and though deprived, as has been

This ancient family derives its surname from the lordship of Trelawny, or Treloen (see Doomsday Book), in the parish of Alternon, Cornwall, which, in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, was held by its earliest known ancestor,

EDUNI, whose son,

HAMELIN, was likewise the owner of Treloen after the Norman invasion, by a tenure from the Earl of Mortain as found at the General Survey. This Hamelin had a son, Richard, who was succeeded by William, owner of a knight's fee from Reginald de Botrell, whose dau. m. this William's son, John Trelawny. He was succeeded by his son and heir, William m. to Joan Trewynnick. He left issue, John, in the time of EDWARD I., who m. Lucy Serjeaux, dau. of Sir Richard Serjeaux. laurel leaves, granted (it is said) for the same military services. Under the figure of King HENRY, which formerly stood over the great gate at Launceston, was the distich,—

"He that will do ought for me,
Let him love well Sir John Tirlawnee."

By Agnes Trogodeck he had a son, Sir Richard, M.P. for Liskeard, in the 9th HENRY V. Dying without issue male, John (2nd son of Sir John) succeeded him, and was M.P. for Truro (27th HENRY VI.). Lineage.

The surname of this family, derived from a place in the co. Northampton, was anciently written Walgrave; and we find, so far back as the year 1205, John de Walgrave serving as sheriff of London. His great-great-grandson,

Sir Richard Walgrave, Knt. of Smallbridge, Suffolk, having represented that shire in the reigns of Edward III. and Richard II., was chosen speaker of the House of Commons in the latter. He d. in 1401, and was s. by his son (by his wife Joan, dau. and heiress of Silvester of Buers, in Suffolk),

Sir Richard Walgrave, Knt., who, succeeding to the inheritance of his mother, was styled Lord of Buers and Silvesters; which Sir Richard, with Lord Clinton, Sir John Howard, and Lord Falconbridge, was appointed, in 1402, to keep the seas; and landing 10,000 men in Brittany, won the town of Conquet and the Isle of Rhé. He m. Jane, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Montechensy, of Edwardstown, co. Suffolk; and dying in 1436, was s. by his son,

Sir William Walgrave, Knt., whose son,

Sir Thomas Walgrave, received the honour of knighthood for his valour at Towton Field, 20 March, 1461, the day of the battle. Sir Thomas m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Sir John Fray, Knt., lord-chief-baron of the Exchequer, by whom he had, with three daus., three sons, William, his successor; Edward, ancestor of the present family; and Richard. Sir Thomas d. in 1500, and was s. by his eldest son; while the 2nd,

John Waldegrave, Esq., who m. Lora, dau. of Sir John Rochester; and dying 6 Oct. 1543, was s. by his eldest son,

Edward Waldegrave, Esq. This gentleman had a grant to himself and his heirs of the manor and rectory of West Haddon, co. Northampton, in the 1st year of Edward VI.; and in the seventh year of the same reign, being a principal officer in the household of the Lady Mary, (afterwards queen), he incurred the king's displeasure by refusing to forbid the celebration of mass in her house, and, together with Sir Robert Rochester, his uncle, and Sir Francis Englefield, the two other principal officers, who had offended on the same account, was first committed to the Fleet, 29 Aug., and two days afterwards, sent to the Tower. Sir Edward remained in custody, although permitted to remove to his own house in consequence of indisposition, until the accession of his royal mistress to the throne, when he was recompensed by being sworn of the privy council, constituted master of the great wardrobe, and receiving a grant of the manor of Chewton, in Somersetshire. Sir Edward was subsequently a man of great power during the reign of Mary, but after her decease he was divested of his employments, and committed to the Tower by Elizabeth, where he d. 1 Sept. 1561, leaving two sons and three daus., by his wife, Frances, dau. of Sir Edward Nevil, Knt., and was s. by the elder,

This gentleman m. Jeronyma, dau. of Sir Henry Jerningham, of Cossey Hall, vice-chancellor, master of the horse, and a member of the privy council, temp. Queen Mary; and dying 25 Jan. 1550, was s. by his only son,

I. Sir Edward Waldegrave, Knt., who at the advanced age of seventy took up arms in the royal cause at the breaking out of the civil wars, and was in consequence created a Baronet, 1 Aug. 1643. At the impounding of Lord Essex's army in Cornwall, 1644, Sir Edward with his regiment, kept the pass at Saltash; and being charged by the parliamentary horse, in an attempt to break through, he thrice rallied his men, and although twice unhorsed, eventually succeeded in making forty prisoners. This gallant veteran, who continued to distinguish himself in the council and the field, was s. at his decease, by his eldest son (by Eleanor, dau. of Sir Thomas Lovel, of Harling, co. Norfolk),

WALLER.

WALLER, SIR FRANCIS-ERNEST, Bart.; b. 11 June, 1880; s. his father as 4th bart. 1892.

Lineage.

The family of Waller claims descent from

ALURED DE WALLER, of Newark, co. Nottingham, who d. 1183.

DAVID DE WALLER, Master of the Rolls to King EDWARD III. for thirty years, d. s p. From his only brother, HENRY WALLER, of Hockerton, sprang the Wallers of Groombridge Hall, Rarn, Farmington, &c.

SIR RICHARD WALLER, of Sheldhurst, a participator in the victory of Agincourt, having there made prisoner, Charles, Duke of Orleans, a prince of the blood (father of LOUIS XII.), obtained from HENRY V. the addition to his crest of a shield of the arms of the duke, pendent from the sinister side of a walnut-tree, which his descendants have ever since borne. The French prince, famed as a poet, having been brought to England, was confined at Sir Richard's seat at Groombridge, near Speldhurst. The grandson and successor of Sir Richard,

JOHN WALLER, Esq. of Groombridge, m. Joan, dau. of William Whetenhall, Esq.; and dying 1517, left two sons,

i. WILLIAM, his successor.
ii. John, ancestor of ROBERT WALLER, Esq. of Agmondesham, Bucks; who m. Anna, dau. of Griffin Hampden, Esq. of Hampden, Bucks, and sister of the famous republican, Col. John Hampden, and had by her (who d. his widow in 1652) with other issue, a son and successor, EDMUND WALLER, of Hall Barn, Beaconsfield, Bucks, the Poet; whose abortive suit to Lady Dorothy Sydney, the SACHARISSA of his verse, as well as his political career and beautiful poetry, made him one of the most remarkable men of his age. Edmund Waller, the poet, was b. 3 March, 1605, d. 21 Oct. 1687, and lies buried in Beaconsfield churchyard, where there is a fine monument, recently (temp. the Rev. John Gould, B.D., rector of Beaconsfield) restored by the family, which has on it a graceful Latin inscription. Edmund Waller was s. in his estates by the 2nd son of his 2nd wife, Edmund, who dying without issue, left the property to his nephew, the son of Dr. Stephen Waller, the eminent civilian. From him descends

EDMUND WALLER, Esq. of Farmington Lodge, co. Gloucester, and Kirby Fleetham, co. York, J.P. and D.L.

The elder son,

WILLIAM WALLER, Esq. of Groombridge, was father of SIR WILLIAM, whose son,

William Greville, of London (son of William Greville, seated at Campden, co. Gloucester, 21 Richard II., and grandson of John Grevill, who d. before 23 Edward III.) lies interred at Campden. This William was living 21 Richard II., as that monarch acknowledges receiving a loan from him and his father of the sum of 300 marks, 10 Aug. 1397. He purchased, in the following year, the manor of Milcote, co. Warwick, from Sir Walter Beauchamp, Knt., and entailed it upon his heir male. He d. 3 Henry IV., and was s. by his son,

Sir Thomas Greville, of Milcote, assumed the name of Cocksey, upon inheriting the estates of his grandmother's family. He d.s.p. 14 Henry VII. Milcote, with the other estates of the Grevilles, devolved upon

John Greville, of Drayton (great-grandson of Lewis of Lodowick Greville, and his wife, Margaret,* sole dau. and heir of Sir Giles Ardene, of Drayton, co. Oxford). This John Greville was one of the justices for the gaol-delivery of Warwick, 15 Henry VII. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpedon, co. Oxford, and was s. by his elder son,

In the 13th of the same king, Sir Edward Greville obtained the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus., and at length sole heiress, of Edward Willoughby, only son of Robert, Lord Brooke, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the Lord Beauchamp of Powyk,* which wardship tended in a great degree to the subsequent elevation of the family. Sir Edward m. Anne, dau. of John Denton, Esq. of Amersden, co. Bucks, and had issue (he d. 20 HENRY VII.),

II. FULKE. III. Thomas. IV. Edward.

The 2nd son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, Knt., m. Elizabeth Willoughby, the ward of his father, and the greatest heiress then in England (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage). The account of this marriage is in a manuscript, entitled The Genealogie, Life and Death of Robert, Lord Brooke, written in 1644, and in the possession of the Earl of Warwick. "In the days of HENRY VIII. (says the author of the manuscript), I read of Sir Edward Grevil, of Milcote, who had the wardership of Elizabeth, one of the daus. of the Lord Brooke's son. The knight made a motion to his ward, to be married to John, his eldest son; but she refused, saying, that she did like better of Fulke, his 2nd son. He told her that he had no estate of land to maintain her; and that he was in the king's service of warre beyond the seas, and therefore his return was very doubtful. Shee replied and said, that shee had an estate sufficient both for him and for herself, and that she would pray for his safeties and wait for his coming. Upon his returne home, for the worthy services he had performed, he was, by King HENRY, honoured with knighthood; and then married Elizabeth, the dau. of the Lord Brooke's son." By this marriage, the manor of Alcester, and many other fair lordships and lands, came in right of his wife to Sir Fulke, who, seating himself at Beauchamp's Court, and augmenting his large estate by the purchase of sundry lands in the neighbourhood, raised his family to high distinction in the co. of Warwick. Of this marriage there were, with other issue,

In the 2nd of King JAMES'S reign he obtained a grant of Warwick Castle, and the gardens and other dependencies about it, and was elevated to the peerage, 29 Jan. 1620-1, by the title of *Lord Brooke, Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, co. Lineage.

The territory or "schire" of Wemyss, on the north side of the Firth of Forth, derived its name from the caves in its rocky coast, the walls of which are sculptured with the work of early Christian missionaries, to whom they gave shelter. The family name is derived from the name of the barony, and its possessors are alleged to be descended from a younger son of the Earl of Fife, in the 12th century. The early importance of the family is indicated by the choice of Sir David of Wemyss, in 1290, along with Sir Michael Scott, as one of the magnates who were to convey Margaret, the Maid of Norway, to Scotland, as recorded by Wyntoun.

SIR MICHAEL WEMYSS, of Wemyss (1328-42), had with other issue,

RICHARD, 12th Baron Delvin, had summonses to parliament in the years 1486, 1490, and 1493, and was constituted by the lords-justices and council, in 1496, commander and leader in chief of all the forces destined for the defence of the counties of Dublin, Meath, Kildare, and Louth. His lordship was subsequently summoned to parliament in 1498, but failing to appear, he was fined forty shillings for non-attendance. In 1504, Lord Delvin accompanied the Earl of Kildare to the famous battle of Knocktough, in Connaught, and was the first to throw a spear into the ranks of the Irish, by which he chanced to kill one of the Burkes. In 1527, he was nominated lord-deputy of Ireland, and conducted the public affairs with integrity and honour, until treacherously taken prisoner by O'Connor. That native chieftain having made inroads upon the confines of the Pale, in 1528, Lord Delvin ordered the detention of a yearly rent due to him out of certain carucates of lands in the county of Meath; which procedure led to a conference at the castle of Rathin, belonging to Sir William d'Arcie, when by stratagem the lord-deputy was seized and detained prisoner, many of his attendants being slain, wounded, and taken. Walter Wellesley, of Dangan Castle, and Sir Walter Delahide, of Moyclare, were subsequently deputed to expostulate with O'Connor, and to procure his lordship's liberation, but ineffectually, when another lord-deputy was appointed to administer the government, and Lord Delvin remained in confinement until O'Connor's pension was restored. This nobleman obtained a commission from the crown, in 1567, authorizing him to extirpate the O'Mores, sons of Ferrasse MacRosse, and their followers; but notwithstanding the zeal his lordship evinced in that service, he was himself sent prisoner to London, in 1580, and committed to the Tower, on suspicion of holding correspondence with the rebels of Leinster; but his innocence being soon afterwards fully established, he was enlarged, and returning to Ireland, was present in Sir John Perrott's parliament, in 1585. In 1588, he obtained a grant of the priory of Foure, county of Westmeath; and being, in 1593, appointed by commission leader of the forces raised in the county of Westmeath at the general hosting on the hill of Tara, he brought with the Nugents, his kinsmen, twenty horsemen thither; and so acceptable were his services to Queen ELIZABETH, that, by privy seal, 7 May, 1597, she ordered him a grant in fee-farm of so many manors and forfeited lands in the counties of Cavan and Longford at his election as should amount to the crown-rent of £100 a-year English. But this grant not having been executed during his life, on account of the troubles in Ireland, King JAMES, 10 Aug. 1603, ordered £60 in lands, per annum, to be granted to his widow and son. Lineage.

This noble house traces its descent in the male line to a family which is stated to have flourished in Normandy for a century and a half before the Conquest of England, and obtained its surname from having held the high and powerful office, in that principality, of LE GROSVENOUR (Collins' Peerage). The founder of the English Grosvenors, Gilbert Le Grosvenor came over in the train of the CONQUEROR. So far back as the reign of RICHARD II., proof of the antiquity and distinction of the Grosvenors was given in the famous controversy which then arose, between Sir Richard Scrope and Sir Robert Grosvenor, as to the right to bear a particular coat of arms. Lineage.

This family is said by Collins to derive its surname from the lordship of Paulet, co. Somerset, but it appears by Collinson's History of that county, that Walter de Dowai owned this lordship at the time of the CONQUEROR, and that from him it descended to the Paganels, Fitzhardings, Gaunts, and Gournays. It is certain, however, that the Paulets enjoyed, from a very early period, a manor in the parish, and hence doubtless took their surname.

Lineage.

There still remain in England a few families, and Wolseley of Wolseley is one, that can prove by authentic evidence an unbroken descent from Saxon times, and shew the inheritance of the same lands in the male line from a period long anterior to the Norman conquest. A legend in the family narrates that their ancestor was given the lands of Wlselei (now Wolseley), for destroying wolves in co. Stafford, in the reign of King Edgar, when wolves were finally destroyed in England. A pedigree compiled by Sir Richard St. George, Clarenceux, temp. James I., and carried down to 1692, by Peers Mauduit, Windsor Herald, traces the family from

Siwardus, Lord of Wlselei, co. Stafford, who is shown by a deed sans date to have been father of

William de Wlselei, who as "Willielmus, filius Siwardi Wlselei," confirmed to Stephen Davenport lands in the town of Wlselei. His son, Richard de Wlselei, granted his part of the Mill of Wlselei as "Richardus, filius Wilielmi de Wlselei." He had two sons, Stephen and Ralph.

Stephen de Wlselei, the eldest, is shown by a very ancient deed to have been father of

Robert de Wlselie, called in that deed "Robertus, filius Stephani de Wlselseiu." He was Lord of Wlselei, and was father of

Robert de Wlselei, living A.D. 1281, temp. Henry III. and Edward I. His son,

Lineage.

The family of WORSLEY, or DE WORKESLEY, as it was anciently written, is of high antiquity, being descended it is stated in an old family record from Sir Elias de Worksley, lord of the manor of Worksley (now Worsley, about seven miles from Manchester), at the time of WILLIAM the Conqueror. The Worsleys continued to hold large possessions in Lancashire till the reign of JAMES I. Prior to this it is certain the family of whom we are now treating were in possession of the Worsley estates, and resident at Worsley Hall in the 3rd of HENRY VIII. (1507), when Sir James Worsley, a younger son of Robert Worsley, of Worsley Hall, m. Anne, heiress of Sir John Leigh, of Moes, in Dorsetshire, and their descendant fell in for the lease of Appuldercombe Priory, in the Isle of Wight, to which estate Robert Worsley, succeeded about the year 1590. Their last male heir, Sir Richard Worsley, Bart. of Appuldercombe, d. in 1805. (See BURKE'S Extinct Baronetage.) The family of whom we treat, the Worsleys of Hovingham in Yorkshire, were of the old Lancashire stock, and retained, and still enjoy, certain manorial rights, and other quit, and chief rents, over the several manors and unineloscd lands, so long held by their progenitors in the county of Lancaster.

Family of Wynn.

To the House of Gwydir, now represented maternally in one of its branches by the Williams-Wynns of Wynnstay, must be conceded the first rank in Cambrian genealogy. This eminent family deduces male descent through their immediate ancestor, Rhodri, Lord of Anglesey, younger son of Owen Gwynedd, Prince of North Wales, from Anarawd, King of North Wales, eldest son of Rhodri Mawr, King of Wales. This last monarch, the descendant of a long line of regal ancestors succeeded to the crown of Powys on the demise, in 843, of his father, Mervyn Vrych, King of Powys, and by inheritance and marriage acquired the kingdoms of North Wales and South Wales. He was slain A.D. 876, and left, by Angharad his wife, sister and heiress of Gwgan ap Meuric, Lord of Cardigan, three sons,

I. Anarawd ap Rhodri Mawr, of whose line we have to treat.
II. Cadell ap Rhodri Mawr, King of South Wales, ancestor of the sovereigns of South Wales.
III. Mervyn ap Rhodri Mawr, King of Powys, who d. A.D. 900, progenitor of the Sovereigns of Powys.

The eldest son,

Anarawd ap Rhodri Mawr, King of North Wales, whose palace was at Aberfraw, in Anglesey, d. in 913, leaving issue, I. Idwal Vach ap Anarawd; and, II. Ellis ap Anarawd slain in 940 with his brother Idwal. Anarawd was s. by his elder son,

Idwal Voel, King of North Wales, who was slain with his brother Elis, in 940, fighting against the Anglo-Danes. By his cousin, Avandreg, dau. of Mervyn, King of Powys, Idwal left, with other issue, an elder son,

Meuric ap Idwal Voel, who was taken prisoner in the defeat sustained in 977, and deprived of his eyes by Iago, who suffered him to languish in prison, where he d. leaving a son,

Idwal ap Meuric, who was in 992 raised by the people to his hereditary throne of North Wales, of which he had been dispossessed by Meredyth ap Owen, King of Powys. In the following year, Swane, a Danish chieftain, landed in North Wales, and Idwal in resisting him was slain. His only son,

Iago ap Idwal, excluded from the throne by Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, husband of Angharad, Queen of Powys, was restored in 1021, on the decease of that Prince. Iago ap Idwal, who was slain in 1037, in a battle fought between him and Griffith, King of Powys, son of Llewelyn ap Seisyllt, left an only son, Cynan ap Iago, excluded from the throne by Griffith ap Llewelyn, who also usurped the kingdom of South Wales, Cynan ap Iago, after two gallant and unsuccessful attempts to recover his crown, d. leaving an eldest son.

Griffith ap Cynan, who, after several ineffectual endeavours to reinstate himself in his dominions, which had been usurped by Trahaern ap Caradoc, formed an alliance in 1079 with Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of North Wales, for the vindication of the rightful succession. The two princes met Trahaern on the mountain of Carno, where an action ensued, which terminated in the defeat and death of the usurper, and the restoration of Griffiths and Rhys. SPIRITUAL  LORDS.

* Archbishops and Bishops bear the arms of their Sees impaled with their own family arms, without crest or motto, and with a mitre over the shield. The mitre of both Archbishops and Bishops is (with the exception of the mitre of the Bishop of Durham) exactly the same. It is a high golden cap, enriched with jewels, pointed and divided at the top, with fringed pendants hanging from the lower part: each top is surmounted by a cross, of which cross the more ancient and probably more correct form is as in the above engraving; the present usual form of the cross, however, is that of a cross-pattée. The mitre of the Bishop of Durham differs from that of the other Prelates in being encircled with a ducal coronet. As to the designation and rank of Archbishops and Bishops, see ante, INTRODUCTION.

Lineage.

The title of Baron and Magnat was conferred on this family by letters patent bearing the sign-manual of his Majesty LEOPOLD I., Emperor of Germany, under the great seal of the kingdom of Hungary, given at Vienna, the 8th April, 1704, on Daniel-John de Hochepied, with limitation to his issue, and by royal licence, dated 27 Sept. 1819, the late Baron's father and his family were authorised to avail themselves of the said honour, and to bear the title in this country.

This family, according to the aforesaid royal diploma, in which are cited certain documents dated in the year 1210, had been at that period long established in the Spanish Netherlands, and is supposed, by Jean le Carpenter, in his History, to have been a branch of the family of Boistrencourt, in the Cambresis, where, in the year 1100, it had been much distinguished, and had attained to the highest and most conspicuous stations of dignity, civil as well as ecclesiastical.

NICHOLAS DE HOCHEPIED, in the year 1575, was appointed minister and ambassador from the States-General of Holland, to several electors and potentates in Germany.

DANIEL-JOHN DE HOCHEPIED, being minister from the States-General of the Netherlands at the Ottoman Porte in 1698, distinguished himself in the negotiations which terminated in the peace of Carlowitz, 26 Jan. 1698; and having likewise by his virtues and influence obtained the liberation of many Christian slaves from Turkish servitude, the Emperor LEOPOLD conferred upon him and his descendants, male and female, the title of Baron and Magnat. Lineage.

THOMAS DIMSDALE, M.D., of The Priory, in the co. of Hertford, b. 29 May, 1712, member for the borough of Hertford in two successive parliaments, was grandson of Robert Dimsdale, who accompanied William Penn to America in 1684, and 4th son of Sir John Dimsdale, Knt. of Theydon Gernon, in Essex, by Susanna, dau. of Thomas Bowyer, Esq. of Halbury Hall, Herts. Dr. Dimsdale, in 1745, made a voluntary and gratuitous offer of his services as assistant to the medical staff of the army sent to the north, under the command of the Duke of Cumberland, to suppress the Scotch rebellion; and he continued in the service until after the surrender of Carlisle to the king's forces, when he received the thanks of his royal highness the commander-in-chief. The ample fortune Dr. Dimsdale enjoyed had induced him to retire for some years from the practice of his profession, when his high reputation in the art of inoculating for the small-pox having reached the Empress CATHERINE of Russia, he was especially invited, in 1762, by her majesty to the Court of St. Petersburg, for the purpose of inoculating herself and the grand duke, her son, which invitation he accepted and acquitted himself so much to the satisfaction of his imperial patients, that her majesty rewarded his services with the appointment of actual councillor of state, and physician to her imperial majesty, with an annuity of £500 per annum, conferring upon him, at the same time, a Barony of the Russian empire, with the title of "Honourable" attached, to be borne by him and the eldest of his lawful descendants in succession. She likewise gave him the sum of £10,000 sterling, with £2,000 for the expenses of his journey, and presented him with a miniature of herself and the grand duke, richly set with diamonds. His 2nd son, Nathaniel, who had accompanied him to the Russian Court, had conferred upon him, at the same time, a similar dignity, with similar limitations. Her imperial majesty was further pleased to grant to both father and son, and their lawful descendants, permission to add to their family arms, a wing of the displayed black eagle of the Russian imperial coat, on a gold shield placed in the centre, with the usual helmet over the shield, surmounted by the baron's coronet. A patent in accordance was ordered by the empress to be made out, embellished with her majesty's portrait and other splendid ornaments, and delivered to the Barons Dimsdale. Baron Dimsdale m. 1st, Mary, only child of Nathaniel Brassey, Esq. of Radford House, Herts, but by that lady, who d. in 1744, had no issue. The family of Kearney, Kearnic, O'Kearney, or O'Cearnaigh, as it has at different eras been written, is of ancient Milesian descent, and held extensive possession in the southern counties, of Ireland long before the English invasion. Kearney Castle, Cashel, erected in 1199, 1 King JOHN, one of the Towers of which is still in good preservation, and occupied as a residence, together with a large part of the city of Cashel, and extensive territories in the neighbourhood, belonged to the family, and were confiscated at various periods by the English Government in Ireland. They were hereditary keepers of "St. Patrick's Crozier," called also "Kearney Crux." In a list of tithes taken from the Registry of Cashel, 1643, on record in Dublin, appears the item, "£10 paid to Mr. Kearney for St. Patrick's Rights, as of ancient custom throughout the Province." The crozier was given up by the dau. of Kearney of Fethard, to the then Archbishop of Cashel, and is incorporated in his pastoral staff with an inscription setting forth these facts. They were staunch adherents to the House of Stuart, and amongst "The forty-nine officers"—"Enrolment of the adjudications in favour of the A.D. 1649 officers who served CHARLES I. and CHARLES II. in the wars before Cromwell came to Ireland"—we find the names of James, John, Patrick, Paul, Thomas and William Kearney. We find still existing in the northern transept of the Cathedral, forming part of the magnificent ruins of the "Rock of Cashel," a magnificent tomb of the Kearney family, and in the nave the tomb of Nicholas O'Kearney, the owner of vast estates in the neighbourhood, who d. 3 Sept. 1460.

AONGUS, brother of Eochaidh Ball-dearg, No. 24 (5th century) on the Kings of Thomond (O'Brien) pedigree was ancestor of O'Cearnaigh (Chasil), anglicised O'Kearney, Kearny, and Kearney. Fourth in descent from this Aongus, his great-great-grandson was Cernach (The Victorious), or O'Cernaigh (Chasil), 98th of the Thomond line (7th century).

The pedigree of John Kearney, b. in Galway, 1688, on record in Ulster Office, sets forth that Donehnall, or Daniel Kearney of Cashel, nephew of Nicholas No. 117 of the Thomond pedigree, (81st in descent from Milesius), had issue,

ANDREA-FRANCIS-ALBERT-COCHRANE (Count), b. 13 June, 1874.
Louisa-Evelyne-Selina-Winton-Northwick (Countess for life).

Lineage

The Metaxa family originally came from Cephalonia, one of the Ionian Islands, and having been elevated to the dignity of Counts by the Venetian Republic, had, for 200 years, been the most powerful and influential house in the island.

When the war of Greek independence broke out, Count Andrea (after whom Count Jean Baptiste's eldest son is named) was among the first to join the national movement, and in 1821, appeared at the head of a body of troops, raised at his own expense. To enable him to do this, he sold his patrimony and broke up his quiet home in order to expose his life to the gallant struggle in which he fought side by side with the deliverers of Greece. His disinterested conduct and military success, especially in the affairs of 1822, gained for him the esteem and confidence of the revolutionary chiefs, and in the same year he was deputed by the provisional government to represent them in the Congress at Verona. Under Capo d'Istria and his brother the Count Augustine, his influence increased so much, that on the latter's resignation, he was chosen to the vacant place in the Administrative Commission of the Seven, from 1832 to 1833. Under the Bavarian rule he served his country in foreign missions; in 1856 was appointed minister at Constantinople, which post he occupied until the rupture of diplomatic relations between Turkey and Greece, in consequence of the events that took place in Epirus and Thessaly.

JEAN-BAPTISTE METAXA, was a Count of the powerful Venetian Republic. This title (with many privileges) was conferred upon Capt. Anzolo Metaxà and all his male descendants in perpetuum (by Franciscus Mauriceno), on 12 July, 1691, for his eminent and valorous military achievements and political services, rendered to the Venetian Empire, in the Ionian Islands, Rumelia and Livadia, having raised several thousand men, at his personal expense, to support the Venetian Empire. The family of Metaxà's also distinguished themselves in favour of the freedom of Greece in 1821, and up to the present period hold important appointments under the government. The title of "Counts," according to the original grant of the Venetian Empire, was recognized by the British Government, in the United States of the Ionian Islands, on 3 June, 1840.

This title of Count descends by inheritance; even the daughters of a count have the right to assume the title of Countess, but it is not inherited by their descendants.

Jean-Baptiste, Count Metaxà, became naturalized on 30 Nov. 1846. He was b. 24 May, 1806; m. 30 Oct. 1841, Selina-Jane-Rancliffe, only surviving child of the late Captain Richard Barrow, 1st King's dragoon guards, granddau. of the late Sir Thomas Parkyns, Bart. of Bunny Park, co. He entered the Swedish army, as cornet, in 1764, and having reached the rank of captain in 1778, obtained permission to enter the French army as a captain in Schomberg's dragoons. He was sent to America with a detachment of the French army, under the command of the Comte de Rochambeau, in 1781, and was aide-de-camp to the Duc de Lauzun. On the 3rd Oct. 1781, he was wounded in the leg, and had his horse shot under him at the battle of Gloucester.
